News from Havana and Key West. The government steam transport Nightingale, Captain Breaher, arrived at this port yesterday morning from Roy West, after a passage of four days and lifteen hours. The steamer Columbia arrived off Key West at four A. M. on the 12th instant, having been chartered and despatched from Hava. a by the American Consult there, bearing a measurement of the consultant. ng a messenger to the naval and military authorities, the information that the rebel ram Stonewall had reached Havana on the morning of the 11th, and was then at anchor in the harbor; that she was harriedly reselving men and ammunition from the Owl and other rebel steamers and blockade runners, and that Captain John M. Massit had assumed command of her. The Columbia immediately proceeded to sea, after the nger returned on board, and stood for Havana. As the Nightingale neared Sand Cay Light she saw the United States steamer Powhaitan under way, standing

The rebel ex-President and Cabinel, or at least some portions of the latter, are supposed to have arrived at Matanzax by the blockade runner. Imagene—whether from Galveston or the coast of Florida is uncertain; but circumstances would seem to show that the escape was made from the former place. It is undesstood that on the arrival of the Stonewall at Haram our Consul General, ex-Governor Minor, each swored to charter a Spanish steamer, which happened to be lying in port, to bring the information to Admiral Stribling her; but the "panish Admiral refused to permit her to come, on the ground of of her being a coasting vessel, and the refore, could not clear for a foreign port. This is another instance of the covert malice which the Spanish government has exhibited towards this country throughout the war. Governor Minor, on the arrival of the news from Editanzas, however, took possession of the Columbia, holding hunder reports the stribing and the stribing her was no policited to bring them over The Columbia arrived off the port at two 'clock this morning, but as there was no pilot boat on the bar, owing to the strict blockade established by General Newton and Admiral Stribling, to prevent communication with the main tand, as a assist in the escape of the rebel chief, should he happen to be within the limits of Florida, she could not enter the hartor; in consequence of which their exertions, had a long pull of twelve miles in an open boat, in order to communicate with the Admiral and give notice of the new plane which affairs had taken. They a complished this in an hour or two, when they mendiately left for Havana.

It is believed by some persons think the Stonewall will file probable that he will prefer a neutral vasas, on board of which himself and his plunder would be safe from capture. Other persons think the Stonewall will the safe from capture. Other persons think the Stonewall will tous career to a close at once.

The prize proved to be a schoener, named the Rate tarlion, estensibly bound from Matamoros to New York, with one hundred and blue bales of cotton and soveral coils of rope on board. He had two passengers with him. My informant does not know the name of the captain, but thinks he is a native of one of the New England Jetter.

eaptein, but thinks he is a newer of the factors.

Include tetes.

The follooper was built at Penobscot, and is a fine specimen of a Yankee vessel. She is apwards of two hundred tons burden. She was brought in here, because her papers were not deemed to be satisfactory.

Well, the Stonewall is here. Everybody is in a profuse ge spiration, more from excitement than the heat of the weather, which is awful. Everybody has been on board or alongside, and nothing cles is talked of. What will she do? Where will she go? Will she ight? Will she surrender? There questions are discussed by the whole Bavana community, from morning till night and from of her armor, her shape, her engines, everything, is criti-cized, and all confess her trily formidable—a fact which ap certainly beyond all doubt.

She came in on Thursday morning, the 11th inst., at about half-past six o'elock, and immediately proceeded to her anchorage, about midway between the Reyla stores and the Alameds de Paula. In a few minutes she was surrounded by acores of boats, which emptied visitors from all sides. These, naturally enough, swarmed all over her and took notes. They put their needs into the muzzles of the guns, stretched their needs among the machinery, tried to measure the length of her tremendous beak, looked wonderingly at her small arms, felt the cordage, looked into every hole, even gazed at the cook in awe. All day long, till sundown, the stream poured on, increasing overy hour, till the numeven gazed at the cook in awe. All day long, till sundown, the stream poured on, increasing every hour, till the numbers became so great that many boat leads had to be refused admission. Captain Page and his officers did the honors with the utmost courtesy, and gave the history of their short cruise without hesitation, allowing, however, no remark to escape them in regard to the future. Many government officials and officers of the Spanish navy were among the visitors. One of these latter, captalu of a frigate lying in the bay, remarked, "This little vessel, with only three guns, is master of this port and all our ahips-of-war."

ships-of-war."
Yesterday she took in cost, and no visitors were admitted. To-day, it is said, she is to have some repairs made to her condensing tubes, and to-morrow or the day after she is expected to leave.

But in the meantime events are crowding on us and on the Stonewall. On Thursday evening the Columbia was despatched to Key West with the news of the enemy's arrival, and returned last evening. This morning the Powhatan came in, and another United States was vessel was signalled as I sat down to write. Report has it that three Monitors are expected from Key West and as many from Mobile.

was signaled as I and cown to write. Report has a tanay from Mobile.

Viele Hinde sind des Hausen Tod.

Captain Page has a great opinion of his vessel, and says a finor sea boat does not exist. In the Bay of Blacay he had a very violent gaie and a tremendous sea, which the Stonewall went through with as much case as she would go through smooth water. The Captain said, among other things, that Commodore Craven's statement about the affair at Lishon was, in his estimation, ontirely correct, for the gallant Commodore had never the slightest intention of meeting the Stonewall, for which he (Captain Page) said he did not blame him in the least, believing that the Ningara could not stand five minutes before the Stonewall. He added that he waited for the Ningara twice—once outside Ferrol and again outside Lisbon—for a considerable time, and when he started finally steamed away very slowly in order to give his enomy an opportunity of overtaking him, which could easily have been done.

Among other reports affect to-day is the impertant one that Mr. Minor, finited States Consul, has asked the Captain General to give up the Stonewall as a pirate to the Captain of the Powhatan. The answer of the Captain General to give up the Stonewal as a pirate to the Captain of the Powhatan. The answer of the Captain General was in the negative, and was said to have been accompanied by expressions characterizing the demand as absurd. It is said the demand was accompanied by a threat, to which the Captain General is said to have replied that if any such threats were repeated he would put the offending parties in prison if he could effect their arrest. I do not ask you to believe all this, but I may say that I have been ascured of its correctness.

The arrival of this already famous vessel has caused but I may say that I have been assured of its correctness.

The arrival of this already famous vessel has caused more excitement than I have ever seen in Havana. There are many who suppose her presence will give riss to serious complications between Spain and the United States; and in this case it would be perfectly true to say that the wish is father to the thought. I do not protend to have the slightest idea of what Captain Page's intentions are; but I em certain that she can go through a whole fleet of wooden vessels, and that no Monitors will arrive here in time to meet her in these waters, and that we shall not have our ciriosity to see a battle gratified. I intentionally forego any attempt at a description of a vessel that has been so often described as to be now quite familiar to you and your readers.

The only vessels-of-war in port are the Powhatan and Juniata and a French frigate, Bellone. Outside the port there is at least one United States steamer.

she has come from Nassau. Her arrival has caused considerable excitement, still it s much less than one would expect.

I learn from an officer of the government here that she will not be allowed any facilities for doing damage to our shipping, that she will be obliged to leave within twenty-four hours, and will not be allowed to discharge or take on board any men or ammunition, and only sufficient coal to take her to sea. That if the Captain General here had orders or instructions to that effect he would willingly seize her. As it is he will not probably receive any such be. or: the 20th—too late, as usual, for action, unless this ram should see fit to enter again any of the ports of this island.

two o'clock P. M., and was merely signaled as such. Sedenly she shaped her course to the northward and steamed off with the greatest rapidity, then, for the first time showing her colors—the English ensign at the peak and the rebel flag at the fore.

From the description given of the Imogene there seems to be no doubt that this unknown steamer, seen on Sunday, was her.

Of course the chief item of interest here is the pirate ram Stonewall. It seems she left Teneriffe on the 1st of April, and arrived at Bermuda on the 26th. After a short stay she proceeded to Nassau, which port she was unable sixteen feet of water.

After waiting two or three days off Nassau she came or Admiral of this station, immediately sent an officer on board offering the coditiestes of the station, and yester-day went himself. I did not learn whether he went in full uniform or not, but think it probable, as he is very fond of gold lace, &c. He took his daughters with him, as a pretence with which to cover the charge of an official visit, and yesterday the son of Count O'R-illey, ral officers of the government have been on board.

Our Consul (as it was reported that the Stonewall incourse endeavored to send them word to put them on their guard; but the authorities here refused roundly, and not in the most coursee endeavored to send them word to put them on their guard; but the authorities here refused roundly, and not in the most courteous manner either, to let anything go over which they had control—not even to be allowed to send out a tag to assist an American vessel in danger. This was refused by Senor Herrera, the Admiral. Finally it was determined to send the United States mail steamer Celembia with despatches to Commodore Stribling. Some difficulty was attempted in the Custom House about clearing her; but Meszra. J. M. Morales & Co., who have considerable interest in that department of the government here, soon removed them. By this time it was three o'clock P. M., and it was necessary to have a Morro' pass from the captain of the port. His office would not be open till four o'clock P. M. It was obtained at last and word sent to the steamer to get ready. Something was being done to the boilers, which was unished and steam was got up. This was done in an hour and a half, and at half-past six she passed the Morro, arrived at Sand Key Light at a quarter past one, and fired guns and rockets for a pilot. None came, so a boat was sent up to Key West—a long pull saginst wind and tide—awoke Cdiamodore Stribling, who sent for Commodore Schenck. Stribling went back to bad again without even sending a message of thanks to our Consul here, and much less thanking the messenger. Commedore Schenck thanked this messenger, and heartly.

Consul here, and much less thanking the messenger. Commodore Echenck thanked this messenger, and heartily.

At eight A. M. on the 12th the Columbia started back, arrivine here at half past four P. M.

This morning the Powiatan, Captain Worden, arrived, and the gunboat Aries is outside.

To-day is the anniversary of the King of Spain's birthday, so there was the national salute this morning and at uoon again, a Ferseh man-of-war and the Powhatan taking part. The latter was obliged to draw all the shot from her guns to fire this salute. The poor Stonewall could only must the Spanish flag at the fore in allence.

There have been many visitors to the pirate, of course, and the ferry company advertised one of their boats to go out and around her, taking passengers at twenty cents each, and I believe goes again to day.

One of the twolve passengers that the Imagene landed in Matanzan was Zach, Davis, a pilot from Galveston.

From Key West I learn that the Aries captured a brig, under English colors, from the Florida coast for Nassau, with ene handred and nine bales of cotten on board, $390,000 in specie and two mon net on the crew or passenger lists, and who refused to give their names, as did the captain, or where he was from.

The subject of this notice was for many years Captain of the Seventh precinct police. He was sixty-three years old, and was a resident of the Seventh ward for the last forty years. At a regular meeting of the Ancient Order of Good Fellows, of which deceased was a member, resolutions were adopted condoling with his family, and expressing the deep regret of the association at the loss they had surfained in the death of one who was looked upon as the father of the Order.

THE RAILFACHE.

Opportunity is now afforded to travel by rail, direct from Morehead City, via Newbern, Goldsboro, Raleigh, Greensboro and Charlotte to Blackstock—a station on the line of the South Carolina and Charlotte Railroad, a short distance south of Chester. Reaching Greensboro, the traveller can also go by rail direct to City Point, via Danville, Burkesville Junction and Petersburg. Thus it will be seen that the facilities for travelling in the States of Virginia and North Carolina, and the greater portion of South Carolina, are favorble. Furthermore, the military authorities will refrain as much as possible from interfering or being in any way connected with the running of the roads. For the present the line from Raleigh to Morchead City will be immediately under military control. This is rendered absolutely necessary, because the government has yet a large army in the inter-or of North Carolina, and must adequately supply it. Beyond Raleigh, moving in the direction of Charlotte, the line will be left to be operated by the North Carolina Kallroad Company, said company to be paid a fair compensation, to be hereafter arranged, for the transportation of troops and supplies. Already this company has commenced running regular passenger trains, charging passengers, clitizens, at the rate of five cents per mile. Passenger trains also run on the line from Charlotte south to Blackstock, beyond which point the line is destroyed. This destruction was ordered by General Sherman at the time when his troops were in the neighborhood of Columbia. At the present time, there being no money among the rebels who were in the army and the clitzens, the company is transporting passengers free of charge.
